

Meet the Members

Whitney Osborne, a student at the UNF Coggin College of Business majoring in Finance and graduating in the Spring of 2010, decided that UNF and the Coggin College needed the Women in Business Society. There are so many different student organizations within the Coggin College, but none of them focusing on Women in Business, the challenges that women face, the methods used to improve those challenges, and their triumphs. Coincidentally, the UNF Coggin College of Business and Shannon Italia, Director of the Career Management Center, invited four successful and courageous women to speak as a panel about Women in Business. With so many interested students at the panel, many of them had no trouble deciding on joining the WBS. With an idea from one student, the WBS grew into an amazing student organization. The summer provided the WBS with a few new challenges such as fundraisers and putting together socials and events, but the hard work and success from each fundraiser and event created a strong bond with the members of the WBS. The WBS is excited about their inauguration this fall semester, and they are eager to meet potential members at their events, meetings, and workshops.
